BARATOGA, Aug. 12.-Sometimes, in describ ing the political history of a day, it is necessary for the purposes of strict accuracy, to give the events in chronological order. Former Senator David B. Hill arrived in this village to-night at 8:35, accompanied by Demecratic State Chairman Elliot Danforth. Chief Clerk Calvin J. J. Husen of the committee Anthony N. Brady, Samuel A. Beardsley, Police Commissioner York, John C. Sheehan, and many other members of the committee came along on the same train.

Mr. Hill and most of the others went straight to the Grand Union Hotel. Richard Croker was not in the hotel at the time. In full evening dress with Fire Commissioner Scannell and other Tammany Indians, Mr. Croker was at the Theatre Saratoga. There is a society drama, with the scenes laid in Italy, on the boards of this theatre for a few nights.

Mr. Croker was informed of Mr. Hill's arrival. He left the theatre and in a few moments strolled into the corridor of the Grand Union Mr. Hill, with Mr. Danforth and a great congre gation of newspaper correspondents, was in the rear of the corridor, fifty feet from the spot or which Mr. Croker and his friends had planted themselves. Mr. Croker and his friends pulled themselves. Mr. Croker and his friends pulled out big, fat cigars and lighted them and looked nonchalantly at the group of which Mr. Hill was the centre. Mr. Hill was almost swarthy in his nut-brown hue, gained by his dips in the ocean at Normandle-by-the-Sea. He said:

"It is a mistake to say that I am opposed to Saratoga as a meeting spot for this or any other Democratic State Convention. To be strictly accurate, it should be said that I do not favor Saratoga as a meeting spot for the convention unless it can be held when a great crowd is here. I do not favor boiding a convention here unless there is to be a great throng to take an interest in the proceedings."

"Where is the convention to be held?"

"Where is the convention to be held?"

"I do not know. There has been no decision yet."

Mr. Hill then asked if the Republicans had secured the Convention Hall here for Bept. 27, and he was told that the best information was that they had.

It was then 9:15, and Mr. Hill said he was mighty hungry. He said he would be pleased to see the newspaper men in his room at 10:30. Mr. Hill and Mr. Danforth then went to dinner. At 9:45 exactly Levi H. Wager, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Democratic State Committee, walked up to Mr. Croker, who, with his friends, had not departed from the identical spot he had occupied for nearly an hour, and said:

"Mr. Croker, Mr. Hill and Mr. Danforth would like to see you upstairs in Mr. Hill's room. It is No. 111."

"But, Mr. Croker, "replied Mr. Croker to Mr. Wager, "that I shall not come."

"But, Mr. Croker," replied Mr. Wager, "Mr. Hill and Mr. Danforth would like to confer with you as to State Convention matters."

"Cell them," replied Mr. Croker, with just a slight high key to his usually softly modulated voice, "that I shall not go into a room or into any secret caucus. If they want to see me they can come out here where I am talking to my friends."

friends."
At the last words were uttered, Mr. Hill and Mr. Danforth re-entered the corridor from the dining room and remained in the rear. Mr. Wager, walked over to Mr. Hill and Mr. Danforth and conveyed Mr. Croker's answer to the invitation for a conference. Hr. Hill turned on his heel and went upstairs to his room. Mr. Danforth saw Mayor Van Wyck, and went up to him and grasped the Mayor's hand. Mr. Danforth, after greeting John C. Sheehan and others, went upstairs and joined Mr. Hill. It was then IO o'clock.

"Where is the Democratic State Convention to be held?" asked The Sun representative of Mr. Croker.

"Syracuse." sontentiously replied the Tammany chieftain.

"When?" he was asked,

"Oh, along about Sept. 21 or 22. I should imagine." replied Mr. Croker.

The Tammany chieftain then stroiled out upon the porch of the Grand Union and gossipped with his friends, including Mayor Molloy of Troy.

At 10:10 o'clock Mr. Croker made the additional statement that in his opinion the Convention would be held on Sept. 28. The Tammany primaries to elect delegates to the State Convention would be held on Sept. 2.

Promptly at 10:30, in response to Mr. Hill's invitation, the newspaper men trooped upstairs to his room. Mr. Hill was conferring with Mr. Danforth and Mr. Husen. He had a list of the Democratic State Committee in his hand as he looked up and smilingly greeted his visitors.

"Return at 11:30, will you, gentlemen?" said Mr. Hill. "Then I'll be glad to see you."

Downstairs in the corridor "Him," the button flend of New York city, was handing out Van Wyek, Danforth, Hill, and Croker buttons, all naming these respective Democrats for Governor.

Sepator Murphy, it was ascertained, was in all naming these respective Democrats for Governor.

Senator Murphy, it was ascertained, was in Washington. He had fully decided to come to Saratoga, but two days ago a committee of citizens of Troy waited upon him in his seaside home at Eibsron and announced that there were healthful accommodations for 14,000 of our returning soldier boys at Sand Lake, near Troy. Senator Murphy and the citizens committee proceeded immediately to Washington to lay the matter before Secretary Alger and Adit. Gen. Corbin.

Five minutes later Mr. Croker. Anthony N. Brady. Samuel A. Heardsley, and James Shevlin, Hugh McLaughlin's licutenant, went into conference in Mr. Brady's rooms. Mr. Beardsley is a personal triend of both Senator Murphy and Mr. Hill. He deprecates in the strongest terms any political situation in the Democratic party in the State which might lead to the severance of the old friendly relations between Mr. Murphy and Mr. Hill. Mr. Beardsley convention. Mr. Brady is a delegate to the convention from Albany county, just as Mr. Hill is.

When the conference in Mr. Brady's rooms broke up it was made known that the political sharps should keep their cyes wide open and fully directed on Supreme Court Justice Of. Albany county. The Herrick boom for Governor gained great headway after the conference in Mr. Brady's rooms. Mr. Herrick was "regular" in 1848. He is a conservative citizen and can secure the support of princeton to see Mr. Cleveland. Democrats in Greater New York who supported Seth Low for Mayor last fall. His candidacy would unite all factions of the Democration of the pendent of his views on the situation.

These and a number of other political arguments were advanced in support of Justice Hegrick's nomination.

Meantime it was told in the corridors of the Grand Union t

The Sun man.
Oh. no," laughingly replied Mr. Hill. "No statement necessary, everything's harmonious and the grouse hangs high."
"When is the convention to be held?"
"Sept. 28, at Syracuse." replied Mr. Hill.
Later on. Mr. Hill said that he had accompanied Mr. Shevlin and Mr. York of Brocklyn to a room in the hotel, where he had met Mr. Croker. It was subsequently said that the meeting between Mr. Hill and Mr. Croker coccurred in Mr. Brady's rooms, where were assembled Mr. Brady's rooms, where were assembled Mr. York. It was said to have been a friendly meeting, but neither Mr. Hill nor
Mr. Groker would say what occurred.
At midnight, Chairman Danforth, speaking with authority, said:
"The meeting between Mr. Hill and Mr.
Groker occurred at 11 o'clock to-night upstairs in a room. It was just a friendly meeting
They agreed upon the time and place—Sept. 28 and Syracuse—for the Democratic State Convention. That's all that occurred."

The Democratic State Committee will adjourn to-morrow to meet at the Yates House, Syracuse, on Sept. 27, at 8 o'clock in the evening. While the Republican State Committee has not met to select a time and place for the Bepublican State Committee has been unofficially preclaimed that the Republican Convention would be held in this village on Sept. 27, and it is announced here that the Republicans have secured the Convention Hall here for that day. Thus it appears that unless the Republicans change their programme the two conventions will be held at the same time, as in 1833, when the Democratis met here and the Republicans in Styracuse.

Finally Chairman Danforth and Corporation Counsel John Whelen of New York made it known at 12:15 this morning that at the meeting between Mr. Hill and Mr. Croker to-night the two men shock lands and wore just as friendly in their conversation as you please.

the West Thirtieth street station will send a squad of policemen to the funeral to-day to keep the crowd away.

While funeral flowers were being carried to the undertaker's last night, a city marshal stood across the street at the entrance to 643 sixth avenue trying to gain admission to the flat in which the tragedy had occurred. He was after the furniture, every article of which, he said, Hawley had pledged on chattel mort gages for the nurpose of raising money.

An investigation by Police Inspector Thompson to find out how Hawley could be with the Breen woman from midnight until 5:30 o'clock on Thursday morning, when he was supposed to be at the police station, was begun yesterday.

Quarantines Established at Once. NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 12.-Health Officer Smith of St. Mary's parish to-day announce the death, of yellow fever, of a man named Holsen at Franklin, La. Holsen had been sick seven days, the case being diagnosed as meningitis by the local physician. An autopsy proved it to be vellow fever. As soon as this fact became known, quarantines were established against Franklin in all directions. The Louisiana State Board of Health, New Orleans, Morgan City, New Iberia, and other points quarantined it. The people of the neighbor-hood at once established a picket line around Franklin, and will permit none of the people to Franklin, and will permit none of the people to leave that town.

Dr. Carter of the United States Marine Hospital Service and Dr. Gill of the State Board of Health went at once to Franklin to take charge and investigate the sanitary condition of the town. There are no suspicious cases at Franklin. During the last epidemic of yellow fever there were only four cases of the disease there, and their origin was mysterious, as no one could trace any connection with New Orleans or Mississippi places. FALLING POLE INJURES FOUR.

One Victim May Die. An old rickety clothespole which had stood for years in front of the rear tenement at 362 Newark street, Hoboken, fell vesterday morning and seriously injured four persons, one of whom will probably die. The pole, which is almost as big as a telegraph pole, landed on a stoop on which were sitting Mrs. Helen Disch. with her three children. Lillian, aged 12; William, aged 0, and Helen, aged 4, and Abraham liam, aged 6, and Helen, aged 4, and Abraham Schatz, aged 5, all occupants of the tenement. Shortly after 6 o'clock a strong gust of wind swayed the pole, which was braced with props, It leaned toward the stoop and fell with a crash, smashing the railing of the stoop and knocking Mrs. Disch off a chair, bruising her arms and body. Helen and William Disch were pinloned under the pole and were unconsclous when rescued. They were taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where it was found that the girl's skull was fractured. She is likely to die. Her brother had a scalp wound six inches long. Lillian Disch escaped with a slight scalp wound, and the Schatz boy fell off the stoop and wasn't hurt at all.

A NAIL FORTUNATELY PLACED.

It Caught Carter's Trousers and Arrested His Swift Descent to Destruction.

WHITESTONE LANDING, N. Y., Aug. 12 .- A shingle nail saved the life of A. L. Carter to-day. Carter is a plumber. He was fixing the roof of Mr. Marshall's house on Whitestone avenue and started to descend to the gutter. He had forgotten to take into consideration the fact that the mossy substance on the roof, combined with the heavy rain, made the roof as slippery as glass. Before he knew it Carter found himself going down the roof as if he were on a toboggan slide. Just as he reached the edge of the roof, which was forty feet above the ground, something caught in the scat of his trousers.

It was a protruding shingle nail. If tore the cloth, but it stopped his downward flight. After he recovered from his fright he threw himself on his stomach, lossening himself from the nail, and crawled upward, slipping back again and again for two hours before he reached the scuttle, completely exhausted.

RAILROAD MEN BAISE THE FLAG. Ex-Secretary Sherman Salutes Old Glory in the Pennsylvania Yards. A big flag, purchased with contribution from the car inspectors and cleaners, was raised at noon yesterday in the Pennsylvania Railroad yard near the passenger depot in Jersey City. The pole was furnished by Super-intendent Brooks. When the flag was hoisted to the top of the pole all the locomotive whistles in the yard screeched out a salute, which was taken up by the factories in the neighborhood.

Ex-Secretary of State John Sherman was in the passenger depot waiting for a train. An attendant pointed out the flag to him. Mr Sherman took off his hat and bowed his head in the direction of the flag.

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 12.-When the steamship ucania, from New York Aug. 6, arrived here his morning she was boarded by Detectives O'Neill and Byrne, who discovered and arsted John W. Jago, the missing first officer of the steamship Britannic, wanted in New York to answer a charge of smuggling and robbing the mails carried on the Britannic.

The prisoner was taken ashore and remanded to Cork jail for eight days. Jago was a secondclass passenger and was known on board as John McFadden. When he was accused of the crimes of which he is charged he became greatly agitated, but denied his guilt.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 13.-When the Lucania ar rived in the Mersey to-day she was boarded by detectives, who arrested Steward Daniel Wood on an extendition warrant charging him with

It is not known whether the arrest was made in connection with the mail robberies on the Britannie. Wood has been taken to London.

Jago is accused of having been the leader of a gang of mail robbers and smugglers com posed of members of the Britannie's crew. While searching Jago's stateroom on the Britannic, before the vessel sailed for Queenstown last Wednesday, Post Office Inspectors Jacobs and Hartshorne found a receipt for a registered letter upon which the address o the sender was given as "C. J. Ryan, steam ship Lucania." Further inquiry convinced them that Ryan was an alias adopted by Jago, and that he had sailed on the Lucania, which left here on Saturday last. This was reported o Postmaster-General Smith, who cabled to the authorities at Queenstown asking them to arrest Jago, and also sent a message to Liver pool officials requesting them to cause a search to be made of his home, which is at 1 Moriand Perrace, Manor Road, Liseard, near Liverpool. Other mail robberies on the Britannic have been discovered by Post Office Inspectors Jacobs and Hartshorne which they say were ommitted by Jago. He had intrusted a num her of letters to Chief Steward Henry Clark of the Lucania to be mailed at Queenstown, and ber of letters to Chief Steward Henry Clark of the Lucania to be mailed at Queenstown, and among these was one addressed to "J. Bradley, Selby, England." Bradley, the inspectors state, is Jago's brother-in-law, and they suspect that to him Jago sent the valuables he had stolen from the mails.

Jago also had two confederates in this city, who, the officers allege, aided him in disposing of the proceeds of mail robbery. One of these confederates, it is stated, is the representative of an out-of-town dry goods house and the other is connected with a wholesale firm in the dry goods district in this city. They are under surveillance, but, pending instructions from Washington, their arrest is postponed.

Among the mail stolen on the last trip of the Britannic to this port was a registered package containing $1,500. If had been inclosed in a newspaper the fastenings of which had been further secured with sealing wax. This was not broken, the money having been extrayed through a cut made in one end of the package. To avoid changing the appearance of the package was addressed to Heidelbach, tekelheimer & Co., 27 William street, and had been sent by Constant, De Brown & Co., bankers at Antwerp. Another registered package containing 140 unset diamonds was also broken open by the mail their or thieves, but for some reason only four of the stones were abstracted, the rest being replaced in the mail sack. The diamonds had been sent by S. Groen of Amsterdam to H. H. Groen & Brother of 82 Nassau street, this city. The four stones stolen are said to have been traced to Jago through statements made by Joseph Mangan, a messroom steward on the Britannic.

The inspectors obtained important clues from a cipher code and key which they found in Jago's stateroom, and they also obtained two copies of a photographof Jago, which he had taken at L. S. White's photograph gallery, 105 Fourth avenu

It has also been ascertained by the inspectors that Jago is at the head of a company organized in Liverpool to establish a new steamship line, and they have in their possession a letter sheet bearing the heading "Selby-Abbey Steamship Company, John W. Jago, Manager.

It is probable that Jago and the others said to have been implicated in the Britannie mail robberies, including Third Officer Kynasion and Assistant Stewards Bernard. Tighe, and Galway, who are in custody here, will be prosecuted in England, and that preliminary proceedings for their extradition will be begun before Commissioner Shields on Monday next.

In the trousers were found several letters, one envelope being postmarked Newark, N. J., one envelope being postmarked Newark, N. J., April 29, and addressed to E. H. Renner, Nolans Point, Lake Hopateong. The cost was a heavy blue garment with brass buttons bearing the name of "Brooklyn City Railroad Company," while across the centre was the word "Conductor." The trousers were of mixed goods and ripped open in the back to enable the murderer to get the body out.

The clothing was found about 200 feet from the lake and was covered with leaves and dirt. The heavy rain of the past few days exposed the clothing to view. The police expect some new developments in the murder mystery.

LONDON, Aug. 12.-Parliament was prorogued o-day. The Queen's speech of prorogation contained nothing of importance on the East. ern question except the following:

man carried his wife into the lobby of the hotel and an ambulance was summoned from the New York Hespital. Dr. Parker examined Airs. Boardman and said her right leg was fractured in two places, her right side was bruised, and she had a scalp wound. Mrs. Boardman showed great nerve while the surgeon was dressing her wounds. At the suggestion of her husband the ambulance carried her to her apartments in the Hotel Jefferson at 100 East Fifteenth street.

The cab driver got as far as Twenty-fifth street and Fifth avenue. A score of witnesses of the accident out after him when he tried to get away. Policeman Crowley nabbed him and locked him up is the West Thirtieth street station. The changes which have taken place in the territorial relations of other powers with the Chinese Empire have induced me to conclude agreements by which the harbor of Wei Hai Wei and certain positions adjacent to my colony of Hong Kong have been leased to me by the Emperor of China. I trust that these arrangements will conduce to the maintenance of his independence and the security of his empire and will be favorable to the development of the extensive commerce which is carried on between the people of Great Britain and China."

Half an hour after Mrs. Boardman was hurt William Busbee, 28 years old, of 40d East Seventieth street, was run down in Thirtieth street, near Flith avenue, by another reckless cabby, who escaped. He was chased by a crowd, including Percy Thompson of the Man-hattan Club and Isaac Bell, Jr. They pursued the cabman to Twenty-eighth street, but he turned east and got away. Mr. Thompson managed to get the cabman's number, 502, and gave it to the police. Busbee was injured in-ternally. He was taken to the New York Hos-pital. Not far from where the bag lays package was picked up containing a pair of trousers. They had evidently been in the road during the heavy rain that fell on Tuesday night. A farmer who passed that way on the following day reports that he saw some distance ahead a man who acted strangely and was creeping about on his hands and knees. He went into the bushes on the farmer's approach. It is feared that the man has gone insane and is lost in the woods. The freight train, which was exceptionally heavy, was drawn by three engines. The gradient of the Giori tunnel is very steep and the engines proved insufficient to haul the train up. They almost stopped when half way up.

The tunnel is badly ventilated, and the fumes from the struggling engines asphyxiated the drivers and firemen. The train then slipped back and dashed into the passenger train that was at the bottom of the grade.

rain, the like of which the oldest inhabitant does not remember. With intervals of only a few minutes it has been a steady drenching fall since Tuesday, and it had been raining more or less for several days before Tuesday. The deluge to-day was terrific, and for several hours business was terrific, and for several hours business was about entirely suspended throughout the city. Torrents of water poured down the streets, filling the sewers and cellars and flooding the conduits of the underground electric roads so as to put them temporarily out of business.

The weather probabilities for to-day read "partly cloudy; warmer; southerly winds." The Weather Bureau holds out the hope tonight that the weather will clear up to-morrow by noon. LONDON, Aug. 12.-In the House of Commons o-day Mr. Walter Long, President of the Board of Agriculture, replying to a question by Mr. Joseph H. Wilson, said that if statements of the scandalous way in which British seamen were molested by New York crimps were true the scandal must be stopped at once in the interests of Great Britain and of humanity.

ADOLPH SUTRO'S WILL

Two Contests Are Threatened and an Ol

Homance Is Revived by It. San Francisco, Aug. 12.-There is reason to believe that the will opened yesterday, which was executed in 1882, was not the last will of Adolph Sutro. More than three years ago he told friends that he had made provision in his will for giving his great library to the city. No such provision is included in the document read yesterday.

Then again, Mrs. Kluge, who says she is the Then again, Mrs. Klugo, who says she is the widow of Sutro, declares that provision was made for her in the will of the millionaire. No one has yet been found who has seen a will later than the one formally declared to be his final testament.

Two contests of this will are already in sight. Some of the heirs propose contesting the will on account of the provision giving certain valuable land in trust to charity, while Mrs. Riuge intends to make a fight for the alleged rights of her two children, who, she says are the legitimate offspring of Sutro, owing to her marriage contract with the millionaire.

Sutro's will, unblished in full to-day, contains many things of interest to New Yorkers. The millionaire gives to his sisters, Julia Jordan of New York. Emma Hoefiner of the same place, and Eliza Schuecking, of Baltimore, Md., and their heirs $30,000 cach. To his brothers, Sail Sutro and Lewis Sutro of New York and Otto Sutro of Baltimore, and their heirs, he gives $10,000 cach. Kraemer tried to talk him out of the idea, but falled. Grimm insisted on their going to see Palmer, and when they reached the undertaking establishment Grimm reiterated his purpose. Palmer also pleaded with him, but to no avail.

"I have made up my mind." Grimm replied, "and it's no use for you to argue with me, oil friends. I don't know whether I will do it in a year, a month, or a week, but whenever it occurs I want to know that all will be prepared and that there will be no fuss. I want you, Palmer, to order for me a plain coffin, and then I want my body to ic cremated. You, Kraemer, are to take charge of my ashes and see that they are buried in the grave of my wife at the Lutheran Cemetery."

Seeing that Grimm could not be moved by their arguments, both Palmer and Kraemer promised to do as he requested, and Grimm paid Palmer $125. Palmer ordered the coffin, and it arrived on Wednesday and was placed in one corner of the shop. Palmer also paid the Mount Hope Crematory Company in advance for cremating Grimm's body whenever he should die. Neither Palmer nor Kraemer notified the other people living in the house of Grimm's intention to kill himself.

Kraemer made arrangements for Grimm's room to see if he was ready for the journey. He found Grimm ill in bed and very despondent. Kraemer had a light breakfast sent to Grimm and left the house, saying he would return in the afternoon. At 3:30 o'clock he knocked at the door, but received uo answer. Kraemer received no answer, and thinking Grimm was asleep he went to him and shook him. A revolver dropped from Grimm's hand to the floor, and Kraemer then saw that a thin stream of blood was flowing from a hole in Grimm's right temple. Grimm was dead. Coroner Bauseh found a letter addressed to him by Grimm in which he wrote of the plans he had made for the disposition of his body. As Kraemer and Paimer corroborated the letter Goroner Bauseh granted a burial permit. Grimm's wishes will be respected and the funeral will be held to-morrow.
